putting on the Revolution Carrier-Wrap

Place the strips of fabric on your shoulders with the back support laying on your back.

Make sure the rings are on the outside of the back support and not inward at the body.

Place the pair of lower wings of the back support so that they are laid symmetrically on the pelvic bones.

Pull the back support down to the height of your lower waist and close the buckle on each side of the belly strap (with the attached fanny pack pocket).

Make sure to position the fanny pack pocket exactly in the center of your body.

It is very important to check that the buckles are locked and secure.

Tighten the belly strap by pulling on the hanging straps on each side until it is comfortable around your waist.

Make sure that the back support stays tight at your lower waist.

Insert the opposite strip of fabric through the two rings, then return the fabric through the second individual ring and pull to tighten.

Repeat these actions on both sides, making an X across the chest.

Make sure that the crossed fabric is tight against your body, because the material is stretchy.

The heavier your baby is, the tighter the fabric needs to be pulled closed.

Open the strips of fabric on the shoulders wide so that they are as smooth as possible and not bunched up.

This will distribute your baby's weight more evenly on your shoulders and back.

Now you are ready to put your baby into the carrier-wrap.

cradle position (newborns : 7.7 lbs to 11 lbs / 3.5 kg to 5 kg)

In this position, your baby will feel swaddled like in the womb, keeping the back, legs, & arms in a neutral position.

Stretch the fabric that is closest to your body (the one that crosses under the second piece of fabric) wide open. This is where you are going to place your baby.

Place your baby's back & bottom inside of the fabric so that the strip wraps around your baby from both sides.

In this stage, your baby's legs are still outside of the fabric.

Stretch the second, outer strip of fabric over your baby's legs and body.

Make sure to pull it tightly and keep it flat so that your baby is entirely cradled in the X of the fabric.

If need be, tighten the fabric on both sides at the rings if you feel like your baby is slouching against your body.

Make sure that at all times, your baby's face is clear and visible for breathing.

facing inward (newborns + : 7.7 lbs to 30 lbs / 3.5 kg to 13.5 kg)

In order to place baby in this position, hold your baby against your chest, stomach to stomach.

Place your baby's leg through the crossed fabric that is closest to your body.

Stretch the entire fabric over your baby's bottom and back.

Repeat these actions with the second strip of fabric., so both of your baby's legs are sticking through the fabric.

To fully support your baby's head and neck, cover your baby's head partially with the outer fabric.

Be sure to constantly check that your baby's face and nose are visible at all times.

This position is best for easing colic. Many babies prefer this position and fall asleep easily.

facing outward (3 months old until 30 lbs / 13.5 kg)

This position is suitable only for babies who can hold their necks upright independently.

This is favored by older babies since they can look out and see the world.

Hold your older baby facing away from you, back to your stomach.

Pull the inner strip of fabric over your baby's leg, body, and shoulder.

Be sure to spread the fabric across your baby's body and shoulder, and then repeat the same previous actions with the other outer strip of fabric.

The lower half of your baby is now resting on the X of the fabric, while the upper body is tucked into the fabric.

This equally distributes your baby's weight against your body.

notable points and tips

NOTABLE POINTS

- While the instructions were given with a female model, this product can be used by both men and women - one size fits all.
- The small front fanny pack is meant for carrying a pacifier or other small objects.
- Your baby will both physically and emotionally benefit from the warmth and security, just like in the womb.
- Your hands will be free to do everyday tasks.
- In contrast to other carriers, which only prevent the head from falling backwards, this product provides substantial support for baby's head.
- This product allows every baby, large or small, to be carried safely.

TIPS

Cradle position (newborns from 7.7 lbs to 11 lbs / 3.5 kg to 5 kg):

- It is especially calming for newborns since they can hear the soothing sound of your beating heart.
- This is the natural posture babies have in utero, allowing total relaxation of babies' muscle tones, which encourages sleep.
- It is the perfect position to breastfeed in a discreet way - make sure to readjust baby after feeding so baby's face is visible.
- When removing babies from the cradle position, lift gently upward.

Facing Inward position (newborns from 7.7 lbs to 30 lbs / 3.5 kg to 13.5 kg):

- Use one piece of the fabric to support the baby's head without completely covering the face.
- Hold the baby's head against your chest until the baby is calm and rests it independently.
- This is a very calming position, so be sure to especially use it when a baby is suffering from colic or fatigue. Gently rock your body, sway, and sing to sooth and calm the baby.
- When removing babies from the facing inward position, gently remove their arms from the fabric, holding at their underarms, and lift up.

Facing Outward position (3 months old until 30 lbs / 13.5 kg):

- Older babies love this position, since they can hold their heads up independently and experience the world at eye level.
- Opening the fabric straps on your shoulders helps to disperse the weight of the baby more evenly on each shoulder blade.
- Since the weight of the baby is heavier in this position, tighten the fabric and place the X higher on your chest.
- When removing babies from the facing outward position, remove the straps over the baby's hands and lift upward.

All positions:

- Listen to the baby - all babies know to tell you what posture feels the most comfortable and natural.
- When wearing this product, walk around, move, or sing to help calm baby, ensuring sleep or relaxation.
